Session 3

June 22, 2010

Emily Dust Nimsakont

PowerPoint by Devra Dragos; Revised by Emily Dust Nimsakont

Topics

- Session 3
  - Tables 1 (-09) and 2 and 900 class
  - Table 3 and 800 class
  - Table 4 and 400 class

Standard Subdivisions

- Optional
- Recommended for large number of items within specific topics

Abridged DDC Tables

- Table 1. Standard Subdivisions
- Table 2. Geographic Areas and Persons
- Table 3. Subdivisions for Individual Literatures, for Specific Literary Forms
- Table 4. Subdivisions for Individual Languages

Table 1. Standard Subdivisions: Facets

- Format (e.g. dictionary, serial, catalog)
- Approach/Viewpoint of author (e.g. history, philosophy, criticism of a work)
- People (e.g. women, gifted persons)
- Location (e.g. torrid zone, Greater London) in conjunction with Table 2
- Biographical content

When may numbers be added from Table 2 -Geographic Areas and Persons?

- Subdivisions may be added indirectly from Table 2 through Table 1 -09 or as directed through the Schedules at any time, unless:
  - the Schedules forbid it
  - the topic of the book is only part of the number or is given “standing room” only (Listed as “Including”)
  - there are certain restrictions specified in the Schedules
  - it would be redundant

Notes

The following notation is never used alone, but may be used as required with any number from the schedules, e.g., workbooks (T1-076 in this table) in arithmetic (513): 513.076. When adding to a number from the schedules, always insert a decimal point between the third and fourth digits of the complete number. (Full instructions on the use of standard subdivisions are found in the Introduction to the Dewey Decimal Classification)

Standard subdivisions should be added only when the work in hand covers the whole, or approximately the whole, subject of the number in the schedules

When standard subdivision notation from Table 1 is listed in Tables 2 through 4 and in the schedules, all of its subdivisions as given in this table may be used. Other Table 1 notation that is not listed in the schedules may also be used. For example, the fact that 610.7 is listed does not exclude the use of 610.71 or 610.8

Do not add one standard subdivision to another standard subdivision unless specifically instructed. Numbers in the schedules that look as though they were built with notation from this table but have headings with broader or different meanings are not considered "standard" subdivisions. Hence notation from Table 1 may be added to such schedule numbers

If the 0 subdivisions of a number in a schedule are used for special purposes, use 001-009 for standard subdivisions

Tables Create Note

The following instructions apply also to notation T2-2 from Table 2 when numbers from Table 2 are added directly without the interposition of T1-09 .

In the following notes the word "biography" is used for stylistic convenience; however, the instructions apply fully to description and critical appraisal as well as other persons aspects.

Do not use T1--092 for the actual works of a person except where instructed to do so at certain numbers in 700-779 .
See also discussion at 913-919: Add table: 04: Biography ; see also discussion at 920.008 vs. 305-306, 362 ; see also discussion at 920.009, 920.03-920.09 vs. 909, 909.7-909.8, 930-990 ; see also discussion at 930-990: Wars: Personal narratives ; see also discussion at 930-990: Biography .

Comprehensive biography

Use the number for the subject of the person's most noted contribution for the comprehensive biography of the person. If the person made approximately equal contributions to a number of fields, use the number for the subject that provides the best common denominator, giving some extra consideration to the person's occupation. For example, use the university's area number under 378 for a physicist who became a science teacher, then head of a school of science, but went on to become a university president. Use 300.92 for a person who made significant contributions in political science, in university education, and the study of administrative and economic aspects of utility regulation, since that number provides the best common denominator for his work. However, use 610.92 for a famous woman doctor who also served as a feminist leader, wrote minor novels, and often served as a delegate to political conventions, unless there is an obvious emphasis on her avocations. Give weight to designations listed first in biographical dictionaries, but make allowances for the tendency to list occupation first even when a career transcends occupation.

If in doubt between a number for a discipline and a number for a specific subject within the discipline, prefer the number for the discipline, e.g., use 620.0092 rather than 621.092 for a mechanical engineer who also did important work in transportation and construction engineering.

Public figures

Biographies of public figures frequently present difficulties because the person may have filled several positions that are given varying emphasis by different authors, or may have filled one position that had many facets. Use 930-990 for comprehensive works on persons who held such positions. However, use a number reflecting one position or interest of a person's career if a biography emphasizes this, e.g., use 362.1092 for a biography emphasizing Wayne Morse's promotion of the National Institutes of Health, even though he was a U.S. senator. (See also Partial biography, below.)

A public figure may exert a wide-ranging impact upon the history of the jurisdiction served. For example, Daniel Webster is most famous as a U.S. senator, although he served twice as governor of state and was also a lawyer and orator. In all these roles he influenced the history of his time. Use 973.6067 for his biography, rather than 970.79 for his senatorial

T3-08 History, description, critical appraisal of more than one form

T3-09 Specific forms

T3--1-T3-8

Notes

Notation from Table 3 is never used alone, but may be used as required by add notes under subdivisions of individual literatures in 810-890. It is never used for individual literatures that lack instructions to add from Table 3; the number for works by or about such literatures ends with the language notation, e.g., Inuktitut poetry 897

Procedures for building numbers for works by or about more than one author, limited to literatures of specific languages, and for works by individual authors:

- Look in the schedule 810-890 to find the base number for the language. The base number is identified in an add note, e.g., at 820.1-828 ("Add to base number 82"). If there is a specific literary form, go to step 2; if not, skip to step 4
- In Table 3 find the subdivision for the literary form, e.g., poetry T3-1. Add this to the base number, e.g., English poetry 821, Portuguese poetry 869.1. If the work is by or about an individual author, or deals with or falls within a limited time period, the class number is complete. For other works, go to step 3
- Go to the subdivisions under the particular form in Table 3, e.g., under T3-1 for poetry go to T3-1001-T3-1009. If the work deals with specific kinds of poetry, drama, fiction, speeches, or miscellaneous writings, check the add note; if further adding is not permitted, the number is complete. If adding is permitted, follow the add instructions, which will lead to the table under T3-1-T3-8. For example, the number for a collection of English poetry is 821.008. Also follow the add instructions leading to the add table under T3-1-T3-8 for works not dealing with specific kinds of poetry, drama, fiction, speeches, or miscellaneous writings
- If the work is not limited to a specific literary form, consult T3-01-T3-09 in Table 3, and follow the instructions at the number selected. For example, the number for history and criticism of Swedish literature is 839.709

(Option: Where two or more countries share the same language, either [1] use initial letters to distinguish the separate countries, or [2] for English-language works, use the special number designated for literatures of those countries that are not preferred, e.g., 20th century drama in English by New Zealand authors NZ822 or 828.99, collections of 20th century Australian writings in English A820.8 or 828.99. Full instructions appear under 810, 819, 820.1-828, 828.99)

Tables Create Note

Comprehensive numbers for authors, and numbers for individual works

Follow the criteria given below on language, national affiliation, and literary form in order to determine the comprehensive number for collected works, critical evaluation, or biography of an author. Use the same national affiliation for comprehensive works and for all individual works of an author; however, use the language and form appropriate for each individual work, even if different from the language and form selected for the author's comprehensive number.

Language

Class an author with the language in which the author writes.

If an author changes place of residence or national affiliation to a country with a different language but continues to write in the same language, use the language in which the author writes, e.g., use 891.73 for a novel in Russian by Solzhenitsyn, even if the novel was written while he was living in the United States.

Class comprehensive works for an author who writes in more than one language with the language that the author used last, e.g., Samuel Beckett 848. However, if another language is predominant, class with that language. Class individual works of such an author with the language in which they were originally written.

National affiliation

National affiliation affects the choice of number only for literature written in English (810 vs. 820) or if an option for identifying national literatures is used.

If an author changes national affiliation to a country with the same language as that in which the author has been writing, use the literature number appropriate for the author's adopted citizenship, e.g., class T. S. Eliot as a British author. Class all works of such an author, including individual works written before the change of citizenship, with the same national literature.

If an author changes place of residence, but not national affiliation, to another country with the same language as that in which the author has been writing, continue to use the literature number of the author's original country, e.g., class a Jamaican author living in London, but still retaining Jamaican citizenship, as a Jamaican author.

If information about an author's national affiliation is not readily available in the work being classed or in standard reference books, use the literature number of the author's country of origin, if known; or the literature number of the country in which the author's earlier works were published.

Literary form

For comprehensive works, use the form with which an author is chiefly identified, e.g., Jane Austen 823. If the author is not chiefly identified with one form, use T3-8 Miscellaneous writings, e.g., use 828 for an English author who is equally famous as a novelist, dramatist, and poet. For an individual work, use the form in which the work is written.

Notes

Literature is classed by the language in which originally written

(Option: Class translations into a language requiring local emphasis with the literature of that language)

Class here collections of texts from literatures of two languages; history, description, critical appraisal of literatures of two languages

Unless there is a specific provision for a dialect, literature in a dialect is classed with the literature of the basic language

Literature in a pidgin or creole is classed with the source language from which more of its vocabulary comes than from its other source language(s)

The numbers used in this schedule for literatures of individual languages do not necessarily correspond exactly with those in 420-490

Unless other instructions are given, class a work containing or discussing literatures of two languages in 810-890 in the number coming first, e.g., a collection of English and French texts 820.8 (not 840.8), but a collection of classical Greek and Latin texts 880

Class texts by more than one author in more than two languages not from the same language family in 808.8 ;
